Lakefront trail project on a slow, risky path

Hazards, inconveniences mark ongoing work on Navy Pier Flyover

By Jon Hilkevitch | CHICAGO TRIBUNE

The original section of the Great Wall of China went up in about 20 years. The 110-story Sears Tower was erected in only three years. So how long does it take to build a roughly 2,700-foot-long pedestrian bridge in Chicago?

In the heart of the city's lakefront trail system, slow progress and plenty of hazards and inconveniences mark spring for bicyclists, runners and pedestrians as crews begin the second year of a four-year project to construct a half-mile bridge for recreational users.

The approximately $60 million span, known as the Navy Pier Flyover, will rise above the ground from the Chicago River to Navy Pier. When completed in 2018, the 16-foot-wide bridge will eliminate close encounters between vehicles and nonmotorized traffic by permanently rerouting one of the most heavily used sections of the lakefront trail away from the lower-level sidewalk along the Lake Shore Drive bridge near Lake Point Tower. Bikers, pedestrians and others will no longer cross Grand Avenue and Illinois Street at street level.

In addition, the structure will connect the North Side and South Side of the lakefront trail to create an uninterrupted 18.5-mile path, according to the Chicago Park District, which is responsible for the trail, and the Chicago Department of Transportation, which is building the flyover bridge.

But the work, which is being done in three phases, cannot be completed soon enough for the thousands of cyclists, joggers, roller bladers and others who each day contend with a chaotic, congested and potentially dangerous construction-zone trail section.

A "temporary detour" that will be in place until the project is completed has only made the situation worse, according to regular users of the trail.

The reroute is embedded with sharp turn after sharp turn, a temporary ramp with missing warning signs, where many bicyclists appear to throw caution to the wind, a severe pinch point near Ohio Street Beach that narrows to only 10 feet wide, as well as rutted and uneven pavement north of the beach.

"It gets pretty dangerous. I have been in close calls," said Pierre Balsom, 29, who bikes to work downtown from his home in Edgewater. He said he takes it slow through the construction zone, pointing to a long rut in the pavement and a "ledge" where the path drops off abruptly.

Step by step

Since the project began in January 2014, the bridge-deck replacement and parapet wall reconstruction of Lake Shore Drive, and the installation of foundations, columns and retaining walls for the new bike and pedestrian path have been completed, according to CDOT. Here are the current and upcoming phases of the project:

- The first sections of the bridge structure between Illinois Street and the Ogden Slip are being installed, and the bridge sections at the north end of the project by Jane Addams Memorial Park are expected to be installed next, CDOT said.
- The first phase will run through 2015, officials said. No impacts to vehicle traffic are scheduled this year, CDOT said.
- The second phase, to start next year and run for two years, will be between the slip and the Chicago River.
- The third phase, expected to begin in 2017 and take one year, focuses on improving the path over the Chicago River bridge, CDOT said. TRIBUNE

City officials said the approximately 1-foot-wide rut was caused by storms that hit the lakefront in November. The Park District is planning to repair the rutted strip of trail this week, as well as clean up asphalt rubble that was left from the damage, officials said. Signage also will be improved, including replacement of a "Cyclist dismount" sign that was stolen from a ramp near the bottleneck in the path.

CDOT spokesman Mike Claffey said improvements to the trail's reroute have been made in response to complaints and suggestions. The city is working to complete the flyover "as quickly as feasible, while at the same time minimizing the impact on traffic on Lake Shore Drive and ensuring safety through the construction zone," he said.

Claffey said anyone with questions or concerns about the detour or the project can call 312-464-0241 or send an email to questions@navypierflyover.com.

Officials at the Active Transportation Alliance, which promotes traffic safety and alternative options to driving, said the group and its members have made it clear to the Park District and CDOT that more improvements to the detour are needed, possibly even a new reroute that is more linear.

"Our push has been from the beginning, especially because the construction timeline is so long, that we really need a safe and convenient detour, and we are not quite there yet," said Kyle Whitehead, who manages the alliance's lakefront trail work.

Why women shouldn't vote for Hillary Clinton

The Second City NETWORK
Casey Whitaker
» @SecondCity Netwk

So that crazy woman Hillary Clinton is running for president of the United States of America again. To help spread awareness about what a horrible idea this is, here are just a few of hundreds of reasons why women shouldn't vote for Hillary Clinton. Please get educated ladies; we need to like stick together on this.

SHE'S A BITCH

Straight up. This lady is all about getting things done and taking names. That's why her face is so wrinkled—'cause, like, while the rest of us were getting eight hours of sleep and dabbing on eye cream, she was reforming health care or championing women's rights.

SHE'S NOT QUALIFIED

Sure, she's one of the most influential first ladies in American history, and yeah, she was the first female senator for New York, and OK, she also served as the 67th Secretary of State ... but so what? None of these things could possibly compare to likely Republican candidates like physician Dr. Ben Carson or businessman Mark Everson. I like the word "businessman." The end of the word is man. Period.

SHE'S NOT A GOOD ROLE MODEL OR MOM OR GRANDMOTHER

First off, she has a career, which means she's obviously a bad parent. It's insane to think that certain women choose to make their own money and pursue their own dreams when their husbands have dreams and their kids have dreams. Probably. And after her daughter, who somehow turned out OK without her mom being home at all times, has her own kid, what does Hillary do? She gets out on the campaign trail to ensure a world in which her granddaughter would want to grow up instead of helping with the baby! Babies need help! They are small and dumb.

SHE'S NOT RELATABLE

Like at all. Especially for women. How can we relate to someone who went to college? Or got married? Or had a kid? Or pursued greatness? Really? I don't think so. I also don't know any other women whose husbands have strayed. That, like, never happens. Also, my hair is brown, and hers is kinda blonde, so once again we have nothing in common.

SHE HAS NO SENSE OF HUMOR OR CHARM

Just look at the facts. She never smiles. And you probably need supporters to run for president. Last time she tried this in 2008, she got what, only 18 million supporters? That's nothing.

SHE STANDS FOR NOTHING SINCE THERE'S NO GLASS CEILING TO BREAK

Since the beginning of time, men and women have been treated the same. Or at least, it's been that way here in America! For ignorant women who think that we make 70 cents to every man's dollar, check your paycheck again.

SHE MAKES US FEEL STUPID

She's super educated, and it's just really annoying. The point of college for women is to meet a husband, and Mrs. Clinton didn't find one until law school! Epic fail. And she's done all this stuff and thinks she knows everything about foreign policy and blah blah blah. Send Hillary back to the kitchen. Or I guess show her where it is for the first time.

Peripheral Neuropathy WARNING!

The most common method your doctor will recommend to treat your neuropathy is with prescription drugs that may temporarily reduce your symptoms. These drugs have names such as Gabapentin, Lyrica, Cymbalta, and Neurontin, and are primarily antidepressant or anti-seizure drugs. These drugs may cause you to feel uncomfortable and have a variety of harmful side effects.

Peripheral neuropathy is a result of damage to the nerves often causing weakness, pain, numbness, tingling, and the most debilitating balance problems.

This damage is commonly caused by a lack of blood flow to the nerves in the hands and feet which causes the nerves to begin to degenerate due to lack of nutrient flow.

As you can see in Figure 1, as the blood vessels that surround the nerves become diseased they shrivel up which causes the nerves to not get the nutrients to continue to survive. When these nerves begin to "die" they cause you to have balance problems, pain, numbness, tingling, burning, and many additional symptoms.

Figure 2: When these very small blood vessels become diseased they begin to shrivel up and the nerves begin to degenerate.

The main problem is that your doctor has told you to just live with the problem or try the drugs which you don't like taking because they make you feel uncomfortable. There is now a facility right here in Chicago that offers you hope without taking those endless drugs with serious side effects. (See the special neuropathy severity examination at the end of this article.)

In order to effectively treat your neuropathy three factors must be determined.

1) What is the underlying cause?
2) How Much Nerve Damage Has Been Sustained.

NOTE: Once you have sustained 85% nerve loss, there is likely nothing that we can do for you.

3) How much treatment will your condition require?

The treatment that is provided by Dr. Ruzila has three main goals:

1) Increase blood flow
2) Stimulate small fiber nerves
3) Decrease brain based pain

The treatment to increase blood flow utilizes a specialized low level light therapy using light emitting diode technology. This technology was originally developed by NASA to assist in increasing blood flow. The low level light therapy is like watering a plant. The light therapy will allow the blood vessels to grow back around the peripheral nerves and provide them with the proper nutrients to heal and repair. It's like adding water to a plant and seeing the roots grow deeper and deeper.

Figure 3: The blood vessels will grow back around the nerves much like a plant's roots grow when watered.

The amount of treatment needed to allow the nerves to fully recover varies from person to person and can only be determined after a detailed neurological and vascular evaluation.

As long as you have not sustained at least 85% nerve damage there is hope!

Dr. Paul Ruzila, D.C. at Chicago Chiropractic & Wellness will do a neuropathy severity examination to determine the extent of the nerve damage for only $35. This neuropathy severity examination will consist of a detailed sensory evaluation, and a detailed analysis of the findings of your neuropathy. Dr. Paul Ruzila D.C. will be offering this neuropathy severity examination from now until Friday, Oct. 3rd., 2014. Call (312) 212-1150 to make an appointment with Dr. Paul Ruzila D.C. to determine if your peripheral neuropathy can be treated.

WHY, YES, WE ARE AWARE OF THE IRONY

In a publication called RedEye running a story about weed. That wasn't on purpose. But what WAS intentional was running the story on 4/20, the high holiday for marijuana lovers. That reportedly dates back to a group of California teenagers in the early '70s who would smoke every day at 4:20 p.m. Word spread, and now the number "420" has become worldwide code, found on everything from T-shirts to Craigslist ads looking for "420-friendly" roommates.

WITH MEDICAL POT IN PROGRESS, IS ILLINOIS READY TO LEGALIZE RECREATIONAL USE?

By Megan Crepeau | REDEYE

As Illinois' medical marijuana pilot program slowly gets underway, advocates say the barriers to legalized recreational weed are falling.

If the medical program proves successful and lawmakers see legal weed as a revenue generator for the cash-strapped state, taxed and regulated marijuana could happen in Illinois in five years or even less, guesses Kathleen Kane-Willis, director and co-founder of the Illinois Consortium on Drug Policy at Roosevelt University, which analyzes drug policy.

"It's going to go on a J-curve of expansion," she said, referring to a rapid rise. "You can see that with medical marijuana. It wouldn't surprise me that it could be shorter [than five years]. But I'm not a fortune teller, I don't have tea leaves, just my gut says that because of the fiscal crisis, it might be taken more seriously."

That's legalization—including possible sale and taxation of marijuana in a retail setting—as opposed to decriminalization, which is removal or relaxation of legal penalties for possessing weed. Many municipalities in Illinois, including Chicago, already have various decriminalization ordinances on the books—but full legalization would be a huge step for Illinois.

It's a step that Judy Kreamer hopes Illinois never takes.

"[There] is going to be an unintended consequence that people just don't understand," said Kreamer, president of anti-drug group Educating Voices." We're going to go out there and we're going to put in jeopardy young people, because there's going to be so much more marijuana on the streets."

A 2014 poll showed that 63 percent of Illinois residents approve of non-criminal penalties for possessing an ounce or less of marijuana. Nationwide, a little more than half of people polled in March support cannabis legalization, according to Pew.

But so far, there hasn't been a widespread political effort to legalize marijuana in Illinois, said Dan Linn, executive director of the Illinois chapter of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws.

"There's definitely this kind of [inclination to] wait and see how the medical law pans out," he said. "If it took 10 years to allow sick and dying people to have access to this plant ... I would think we're probably still five years away from legalizing cannabis in Illinois."

Kane-Willis recently returned from a trip to Colorado, where legal retail sale of marijuana began last year after years of legal medical marijuana. Weed also is legal or soon to be legal in Washington state, Oregon and Alaska. Colorado's tight regulation in particular easily could be a model for Illinois, she said.

"It's [a] fully developed, strict system that would pass muster in Illinois, if people could get over their fear that everyone's going to be using, that cannabis use would rise, which I don't think we're seeing the evidence of," said Kane-Willis, who is confident that it would be harder for minors to get cannabis illegally if comprehensive tax-and-regulate legislation were passed.

But Illinois still is several legislative steps away from legalization.

"If there were a recreational bill on the floor today I would vote against it," said Rep. Lou Lang, D-Skokie, an outspoken advocate of Illinois' medical marijuana law. It's too soon for that kind of thing, he said.

"My concern is mostly on the bureaucracy of it all," Lang told RedEye. "The issue here is

IN COOK COUNTY

Cook County State's Attorney Anita Alvarez will hold a news conference Monday to announce reforms to low-level drug offenses, including dismissal of all misdemeanor marijuana cases, a spokeswoman said Sunday.

The announcement, scheduled for 10:15 a.m. at the state's attorney's office, is part of the sweeping overhaul that will also address how the office prosecutes small amounts of recreational drugs including Ecstasy, cocaine and heroin.

what can the state handle? What can the state bureaucracy, the state agencies that deal with these agencies, handle? ... If it turns out they can handle this, we'll talk about other issues."

Medical marijuana likely will not be available to qualifying Illinois patients until this fall, after delays in licensing prevented distributors from opening.

Lang is spearheading a bill that would extend the medical marijuana pilot program for four years after the first dispensary is operational. The program currently is set to expire on the first day of 2018. Gov. Rauner thinks that's a reasonable deadline, according to a statement from a spokeswoman.

Generally, states that pass medical marijuana laws are more open to legalizing marijuana, according to Chris Lindsey, a legislative analyst with advocacy group the Marijuana Policy Project.

"Typically they're the ones who understand how the regulatory framework works and the sky didn't fall," Lindsey said. "They get that the system is functional."

Lindsey also said it's reasonable to expect that marijuana will be legal statewide in the next five years.

In the meantime, Lang and others also have thrown their weight behind a bill that would soften significantly penalties for possession of marijuana. Anyone caught with 15 grams or less would be fined $45 to $125, and upon payment of the fine, the record of the fine would be expunged.

A statewide law would eliminate the "patchwork" of local marijuana penalties, said the bill's sponsor, Rep. Kelly Cassidy, D-Chicago.

"Where we are as a state in terms of our resources and our revenue and the pressures on our criminal justice system, this is what we need to do today, and really this is about creating a statewide standard," she said.

Kreamer remains unconvinced, saying even medical marijuana is "a horrible ruse that has been perpetrated upon the people of Illinois and our country," and says that once people see the consequences of widespread marijuana use, support for relaxed marijuana policies will drop.

"What do we lose? Do we lose a generation because people don't know what's going on, because people are being hoodwinked?" Kreamer asked. "That's what I'm afraid of, and I have every reason to believe it's an accurate statement."

Cassidy disagrees, saying, "'Reefer Madness' is not the issue here."

Cassidy said she could see herself supporting full legalization of recreational weed if Illinois could fine-tune its regulatory policy.

"I don't know that I'd go all the way to inevitable, but I think [legalization] is the trend in the country," she said. "[Prohibition] is a waste of law enforcement and we're leaving money on the table."

5 THINGS ABOUT MEDICAL MARIJUANA IN ILLINOIS

Before marijuana legalization even can enter the conversation, lawmakers say, Illinois has to see how its medical cannabis pilot program fares. Here are five things you should know about medical weed in Illinois.

1 A year and a half ago, Illinois lawmakers voted to legalize medical marijuana—but all these months later it's safe to say it will be awhile before patients actually get their hands on it. Former Gov. Pat Quinn declined to issue licenses for growing and selling marijuana before leaving office in January, which stalled the process until Gov. Rauner issued the permits. The delay means that growers won't have product for another few months; optimistically, patients will be able to get medical weed starting this fall or winter, according to Rep. Lou Lang, D-Skokie.

2 Despite the delay, the cannabis pilot program is set to end after 2017. Lang, saying the state will need more time to evaluate the program, supports a bill that would extend the deadline to four years after the first dispensary begins operating. Gov. Rauner has stated that the program should not be extended until further evaluations are made.

3 The Illinois program is stricter than medical cannabis programs in some other states. Only people with serious diseases such as cancer, AIDS and multiple sclerosis can be approved, though some are lobbying the state to expand the list of approved ailments to include diagnoses like anxiety and migraines.

4 As of April 1, about 2,700 patients applied for medical marijuana in the state. About 2,000 of those applicants have been approved so far.

5 No matter what, marijuana is still illegal under federal law—though President Obama has stated he will not go after states that have legalized marijuana as long as regulations are strict. M.C.

Cardinal Francis George dies after long cancer struggle

By Manya Brachear Pashman
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Cardinal Francis George, the first Chicago native to serve as the local archbishop and a man who during his 17-year tenure became the intellectual leader of the American church, died Friday after a yearslong struggle with cancer.

George, 78, had been on home care since April 3 after being hospitalized late last month for hydration and pain management difficulties. He had stopped eating and returned to the hospital earlier this week but then left for his home at the archdiocesan residence and died there at 10:45 a.m. Friday.

As head of the nation's third-largest archdiocese, George shepherded the Chicago church through school closings and the priest sexual abuse scandal, striving to reconcile his support for the clergy with the pain of victims.

He also became a point person between the U.S. church and the Vatican on the abuse scandal and matters such as liturgy of the Mass, playing a key role in revisions that brought the English translation closer to the original Latin.

On Saturday, some Catholics recalled George as a brilliant and humble spiritual leader who didn't waver from his convictions, even when they were unpopular. Others said he could have done more to welcome all Catholics into the fold, particularly those in the LGBT community. Though his legacy likely will be debated for years, his impact on the lives of Catholics in Chicago and across the country was immense and undeniable, according to those who knew him.

In November 2014, George became the first Chicago archbishop to retire, after his third cancer diagnosis, and was replaced by Archbishop Blase Cupich.

Born Jan. 16, 1937, George went to St. Pascal School in Portage Park, where he knew early on that he wanted to serve the church.

From his childhood on the Northwest Side, George embarked on a spiritual career that took him around the globe as a missionary, then brought him back home in 1997 when he was appointed as the eighth archbishop of the Chicago Archdiocese and spiritual leader of its more than 2 million Catholics. TRIBUNE REPORTERS GREG TROTTER AND MARWA EL TAGOURI CONTRIBUTED.

Blackhawks fans consider coach Joel Quenneville's mustache a sentient being. That's just a fact/cute delusion/wishful thinking. And while not everyone may have noticed, new favorite goalie Scott Darling has sported a killer beard all season.

What if Darling's facial hair could talk? RedEye got in the beard's head for his first playoff start Sunday in Game 3 against Nashville. No doubt he was thinking happy thoughts after a 4-2 victory gave the Hawks a 2-1 series lead. Darling made 35 saves while Andrew Desjardins, Jonathan Toews, Brandon Saad and Brent Seabrook provided goals.

CHRIS SOSA IS REDEYE'S SPORTS EDITOR.
CHSOSA@REDEYECHICAGO.COM | @REDEYESPORTSCHI

After Darling's first save
"Are these goalposts thinner than I am? Nah, it must just be me."

As Saad tries to sweep the puck to Marian Hossa to get the rush going
"I've never heard a fellow beard say, 'Rub some ice on me.' Never."

Taylor Beck gets mini breakaway on bad change
"Really, guys? Do I have to tell your pee wee hockey coach on you?"

Desjardins scores to put the Hawks up 1-0
"YES! We're playing with the lead for once!"

Mike Ribeiro puts one under Darling's arm seconds later to tie it
"Ugh. I knew I should have told the armpit hair to grow a little more."

Saad steals the puck at the Hawks blue line and snaps it past Pekka Rinne to make it 3-2
"Damn, he didn't even need an assist to score that goal. As the beard of a goaltender, I can appreciate that."

Colin Wilson loses an edge in the blue paint and slides into Darling
"So that's how it is, huh? I think someone wants a beatdown from Bryan Bickell."

Seabrook threads the needle to put the Hawks up 4-2
"I used to think nothing could get through me. But after that Seabrook shot, I could be dead wrong."

SERIES SCHEDULE Hawks lead series 2-1

GAME	DATE	WHERE	TV
Game 1	Blackhawks 4, Predators 3 (2OT)
Game 2	Predators 6, Blackhawks 2
Game 3	Blackhawks 4, Predators 2
Game 4	8:30 p.m., Tues.	United Center	CSN
Game 5	TBD, Thurs.	at Nashville	CSN

Nashville's Paul Gaustad goes to the box for high sticking
"Finally, we get a power play. I could use a breather. Haha, see what I did there?"

Hawks win, take a 2-1 series lead
"Now I know what @CoachQsMustache has been raving about all these years! Wait a minute, you mean we have to win 14 more games to take the Cup? You've got to be kidding me."

WHAT DARLING ACTUALLY SAID

"It's exciting. It's nice to talk to you guys [the media] and get it out and remind everybody that today especially was a huge team effort. [Nashville] had hardly any Grade A scoring opportunities. [The Hawks defense was] unbelievable."

BEARD MEN

DAY 6

The tradition continues! For as long as they're alive in the Stanley Cup playoffs, the Blackhawks' Kris Versteeg and Bryan Bickell will try to outgrow RedEye contributors Elliott Serrano and Evan F. Moore.

1	What's been the biggest surprise of the Stanley Cup Playoffs so far?	Those Canucks sure fight dirty! Oh wait, that's no surprise.	That I totally snatched a Zamboni from the United Center for a joyride and nobody's onto to me yet.	Coach Q already gave up on his Stanley Cup-winning goalie.	That Corey Crawford is still with the Blackhawks.	I still hate Detroit, but I still hate the Canucks even more.
2	Scott Darling vs. Corey Crawford. Who ya got?	I'm going with Darling since every time female hockey fans yell out his name I like to imagine they're talking to me.	Coach Q's 'stache. Is that an answer?	Goldberg from "Mighty Ducks."	It's all about the headgear, and Darling's got the better helmet.	Lets see ... nine goals in three games vs. a local guy named Darling with 42 saves in relief. Hhhmmm.
3	What are the chances Derrick Rose's outside shots begin to fall?	Same as some cute female hockey fan calling me darling.	About the same as the chances that Benny the Bull will keep his popcorn to himself.	ROFLCOPTER.	What are the chances Derrick Rose's knees begin to fail?	23 points Saturday ... I think the chances are as good as today is MONDAY!
4	Why did almost 100K people show up at Ohio State's spring football game?	I assume they were showing the latest teaser trailer to the new "Star Wars" movie, right?	I think you mean "The" Ohio State's spring football game ...	Because people in Ohio have nothing else to do but eat fried mayonnaise and watch football.	Supreme leader Urban Meyer told them to show up, and they obeyed.	You ever been to Columbus? There's NOTHING to do!
5	Kris Bryant is finally up with the Cubs. Too soon?	I mean really, did you tear up when Han Solo said, "Chewie, we're home." All the feels!	If it's gonna help, it's never too soon.	The Taco Bell in Wrigleyville did the same thing with their fried chicken menu, but it ended up working out.	The Cubs don't know the meaning of the word "soon."	It's been 108 years. NOTHING is too soon!

*IF NECESSARY

The NBA playoffs always have been an exciting time in Chicago. But this year the postseason feels a little bit different. Despite winning 50 games and finishing third in the Eastern Conference, there are virtually no expectations for this year's Bulls squad. Or at least there shouldn't be.

Is the team as presently constructed talented enough to bring a seventh NBA championship to the city? Absolutely.

Top to bottom, this is arguably one of the most balanced squads coach Tom Thibodeau has had in his five years manning the sidelines in Chicago. But this also could explain the air of cautious optimism that seems to be hanging over the team, both inside and outside the locker room.

As a unit, this group is as confident as it has ever been. They believe in each other and feel like they can win every night they step on the floor, no matter the opponent. But at the same time, the players on this roster all understand—from experience, no doubt—that they are one injury away from having their championship aspirations go up in flames yet again.

Of course, this is the reality for all of the teams competing in the postseason. But there hasn't been a squad in the NBA that has been bitten by the injury bug over the past five years more frequently than the Bulls. In fact, it's almost become an expectation that inevitably, someone is going to get hurt.

Yet as strange as this might sound, the Bulls are in the best position imaginable. While the national spotlight shines on the Western Conference and on the Atlanta Hawks and Cleveland Cavaliers in the East, the Bulls don't have to worry about excess attention.

On Saturday, the assembled media for Game 1 against Milwaukee was only slightly larger than it would have been for any random game during the regular season. In light of the fact that Derrick Rose put on a show in his first playoff appearance in almost three years, he shared the dais with Jimmy Butler in a postgame media session that seemed to end almost as quickly as it began.

All these things certainly will change as the Bulls advance through the postseason, but right now the team isn't taking anything for granted and seems to be in a very good place.

Alabama Shakes

ALBUM REVIEW

Sound & Color
Alabama Shakes

By Josh Terry
REDEYE SOUND BOARD

A band should be more than an incredible lead singer. But after two albums that have failed to match the overwhelming adulation lumped onto Alabama Shakes, the question remains: What would this bombastic southern rock and soul outfit be without Brittany Howard?

That's to take nothing away from the frontwoman. On record, her voice is one of popular music's most powerful and dynamic. (Live, it's on an even higher level.) With Alabama Shakes' 2012 debut "Boys & Girls," Howard's unbridled shrieks and hollers led the Athens, Ala.-based group to rapid fame behind showstoppers like "Hold On" and "You Ain't Alone." Few songs on the follow-up, "Sound & Color," reach the same heights. The ones that do, like "Future People" and "Gimme All Your Love" soar, but at a slightly lower altitude. Expanding on the smoky soul sound of "Boys & Girls" with blistering guitar freakouts, psychedelic instrumental breaks and a whole lot of Howard's piercing falsetto, these rousing songs are some of the band's best. Howard's vocals also wow on the heartbroken lament "Don't Wanna Fight" as she produces sound somewhere between a squeal and a wail. But the track's hook grates after repeating the song's title maybe a dozen times too many.

The rest of the album is likewise a disappointment, as its immaculate production gives the songs an edge-reducing polish. When "Sound & Color" tries to be aggressive, like on the power chord-heavy "The Greatest" and "Shoegaze," it only feels like an impersonation of punk and indie rock. Another experiment, the meandering space rock of "Gemini," doesn't feel fully formed despite droning on for nearly seven minutes.

Alabama Shakes, a former classic rock cover band, may hit the right notes for many, but the band still has yet to fulfill its promise with a cohesive album. And it's a sharp contrast between perceptions of greatness and a merely competent album like "Sound & Color," which is little more than pleasant.

HOROSCOPES

TAROT.COM

Taurus
April 20-May 20
Your boss might not be demonstrative with his or her support of your efforts today, but you keep pushing ahead no matter what. Think cooperatively rather than competitively if you want to climb the ladder of success.

Gemini
May 21-June 21
You may share an intriguing idea with someone today because you want a strong and clear response. Let go of control to allow energy to flow freely and improve your chances of getting answers later.

Cancer
June 22-July 22
Your vivid daydreams of a faraway destination can make you feel like you're actually there. Indulging in a fantasy is all you need to recharge your batteries.

Leo
July 23-Aug. 22
Don't worry about the unrealistic expectations of others. Rather than expending energy justifying your actions, show the world what amazing feats of which you're capable.

Virgo
Aug. 23-Sept. 22
You believe you already possess all the facts you need to make up your mind today. But engaging in honest conversations may bring you a much-needed fresh perspective.

Libra
Sept. 23-Oct. 23
You have many tasks on your to-do list today. Maintaining your focus will leave you with something significant to show for your efforts.

Scorpio
Oct. 24-Nov. 21
Meeting your obligations remains a high priority, but your overall quality of work could suffer if you don't also give yourself the chance to relax and have fun.

Sagittarius
Nov. 22-Dec. 21
You might experience unexpected stress because of current heavy responsibilities. Give your mind a break and exercise your creativity while you can.

Capricorn
Dec. 22-Jan. 19
You likely won't be able to stick to your plans today. Your moods are meandering all over the map, making you less likely to follow through on your original agenda. Let go and allow your heart to lead the way.

Aquarius
Jan. 20-Feb. 18
You may receive an important message from someone close to you. Although this new information complicates your life, you will only make matters worse if you try to block it out. Deal with issues before they spin out of control.

Pisces
Feb. 19-March 20
You're emotionally unsettled today because you sense something big is about to change. But attempts to ignore your needs could trigger you to unconsciously act out. Go with the flow.

Aries
March 21-April 19
If you look at everything very closely today, you may notice things are bent slightly out of shape. Instead of struggling to discern the truth, explore every idea that floats across your consciousness.

That's how long it took for "Furious 7" to race across the $1 billion mark, faster than any other movie in history, according to Forbes. The seventh film of the franchise has grossed $1.153 billion worldwide, and is the seventh-highest grossing movie of all time. It also stayed in the lead domestically for the third week in a row with $29 million, as new releases "Paul Blart: Mall Cop 2" (an estimated $24 million) and "Unfriended" ($16 million) couldn't overtake the car-racing juggernaut.

Keeping up with Kanye

Kanye West made an unannounced appearance at Coachella this weekend, showing up during The Weeknd's Saturday night set. According to Rolling Stone, Mr. Kim Kardashian performed four tracks: "Can't Tell Me Nothing," "Black Skinhead," "All Day" and a cover of fellow Chicago rapper Chief Keef's "I Don't Like." Incidentally, The Weeknd will be performing at Lollapalooza on July 31, the same day Paul McCartney—who has collab'ed with Kanye on "Only One" and "FourFiveSeconds"—headlines. Fingers crossed that Kanye keeps up the surprise music fest appearances until then.

That's when you'll be able to start ordering a summer camp staple with your toasted bagel and cream cheese. Starbucks has announced they'll be offering a s'mores Frappuccino "inspired by the nostalgic summer experience of roasting S'mores," People reports. The concoction will be layered with all the good stuff: marshmallow-flavored whipped cream, milk chocolate sauce and blended coffee mixed with graham cracker. And then, of course, topped with more marshmallow whipped cream. And sprinkled with more graham cracker.

"It's not like I thought the show wasn't working any more, or that I didn't know how to do it. It was more, 'Yup, it's working. But I'm not getting the same satisfaction.' "

THE DIGIT

$137,000

That's how much a dress worn by Vivien Leigh as Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone with the Wind" fetched at auction Saturday, according to Yahoo. Heritage Auctions in Beverly Hills, Calif., said the period costume dress sold for more than double its starting price of $60,000. Other items that were sold Saturday from the 1939 cinema classic include the straw hat with green ribbons Leigh's character wore at the start of the film ($52,500) and one of her blouses ($32,500). Even Miss Scarlett wouldn't turn her nose up at those prices.

"Daniel, get a job. Figure out what you love, what you love to do, then discern how to get paid to do it."

—Nick Offerman's high school graduation advice to a fan, according to BuzzFeed and a Reddit user who posted a picture of the photograph on which the message was written and signed supposedly by Offerman. Sounds like pretty good advice to us, Daniel.
